It should be used to supplement the Catalog of Courses which you already have, or will receive shortly.

Courses are listed alphabetically in the Index on Page In the text they are arranged according to the School or Staff responsible for the instruction. They are identified as full-time or part-time, with total hours indicated in parenthesis. Inclusive dates are listed under the title. If a course is not formally scheduled we have noted it as "Scheduled on Request." Some September dates predate publication of the Bulletin: These dates were announced in earlier editions but we chose to print them here so that those who have to plan training programs will have an idea of the frequency of a course during the year.

CONFIDENTIAL

Courses are usually given as classroom instruction. If there is a special requirement that cannot be met through the regular scheduled program, arrangements may be made with the Chief of the School or Staff to have the subject-matter tailored especially for a group or to have it given tutorially.

Except for Dependents Briefing and CIA Review, registration is by way of a completed Form 73, "Request for Internal Training." The form is due in the Registrar's office before the close of registration which, for headquarters, is one week before the course begins and [] two weeks before the starting date. Registration for Dependents Briefing and CIA Review is presently handled through extension []

25X1A

If you need information as to the classroom for headquarters courses, call the Admissions and Information Branch of the Registrar Office, [] If you need additional copies of the Bulletin or the Catalog call the same extension.

NOTETAKING TECHNIQUES COURSE ON TV

A Notetaking Techniques course will be given on Washington's education television station, WETA (Channel 26), beginning 2 October 1962. The course is sponsored by Strayer Junior College and will be conducted on Tuesdays and Thursdays at 9 p.m. The instructor is Sue Guyon of the Strayer school.

The course is designed for professional people and high school students who plan to attend college. It will cover Notehand, a revised system of Gregg Shorthand with symbols that "can be learned in an hour." How to listen, organization of notes, and what notes to take will also be covered in the course.

The fee for a text and course material will be $15.00.

INFORMATION ON COLLEGE SCHOLARSHIPS AVAILABLE

AIB/RS/TR has a copy of the U. S. Office of Education's new pamphlet, "Financial Assistance for College Students: Undergraduate". The pamphlet lists the number and amount of scholarships, closing dates for scholarship applications, amount of aid provided, and other pertinent matter. Employees may review the brochure in Room GC-03 or they may obtain a copy from the U. S. Government Printing Office at their own expense for their personal use.

OFF-CAMPUS OFFERINGS EXPANDED - REGISTRATION
13 AND 14 SEPTEMBER

Several modifications of significance have been planned for employees wishing to avail themselves of college-credit courses offered as part of the self-improvement program conducted after hours this fall, at Headquarters Building. Briefly, these are worthy of special notation:

1. American University is sponsoring two courses in economics.
2. George Washington University undergraduate courses under the auspices of the College of General Studies, are being extended to include junior-senior level subjects.
3. Graduate-level courses are offered for the first time.

At the request of the Office of Research and Reports, arrangements have been made with American University to permit presentation of a graduate course "Economic Theory" and a senior-credit course entitled "Introduction to Quantitative Economics." For qualified students, the former course will be creditable at AU toward a Master of Arts in Economics. The latter is a "tools" course, recommended by Dr. W. Donald Bowles, Chairman of the Economics Department at AU, as preparatory to a more advanced course, Quantitative Economic Analysis which will be offered later. The course in Economic Theory will be taught on Tuesdays, and Introduction to Quantitative Economics, on

Thursday Courses will begin in the week of 17 September. Final details on registration for the two AU courses will take place on Thursday morning, 13 September in Room 4F-31. Preliminary expression of interest indicates that maximum enrollments have already been obtained from ORR. Qualified employees whose names have not yet been placed on tentative rosters will be required to consult the OTR Registrar before Monday, 10 September.

25X1A

Four of the freshman-sophomore courses initiated at Langley under GWU auspices in January will be repeated this fall. These are:

- Accounting 1 - Introductory Accounting
- Economics 1 - Principles of Economics
- English 1 - English Composition
- Psychology 1 - General Psychology

Of the above, only English 1 requires a pretest at time of registration or before that time,

25X1

Two courses are being offered for the first time:

- History 39 - The Development of European Civilization
- English 71 - Introduction to American Literature

It will now be possible to convert these courses to the normal academic pattern of odd-numbered courses to begin in the fall and even-numbered courses starting in the spring so as to parallel the on-campus pattern of scheduling. Those students who completed a three semester hour introductory course last spring plus those who initiate a similar course this fall can plan their scheduling so as to complete any requisite six-hour block in the semester beginning January 1963. In the case of students who have completed History 71 and History 72, the six-semester hour prerequisite has already been met for more advanced courses in American History.

SECRET

At the junior-senior level, several diversified courses have been selected. These include:

- Business Administration 101 - Introduction to Business
- Business Administration 171 - Principles of Transportation
- Political Science 111 - Introduction to Comparative Government
- Speech 111 - Effective Speech Communication

Negotiations are proceeding satisfactorily with the School of Government, Business, and International Affairs looking toward the establishment of courses at Headquarters which will lead to the degree of Master of Arts in International Affairs. GWU has designated Dr. John Withrow Brewer as faculty advisor for this program. Dr. Brewer is Chairman of the Department of International Affairs and also serves as faculty advisor for the cooperative GWU program conducted at the National War College. As has been previously reported, admission prerequisites will be discussed at an assembly of interested candidates. Dr. Brewer has proposed that such an assembly be deferred until early November. This meeting of potential candidates and a faculty advisor can thus take place at a time when working details will have been accomplished and Dr. Brewer's security clearance completed. Meanwhile, permission has been granted to present any 200-level course for which adequate interest is expressed. It is believed that sufficient registrants may be found to warrant offering one of these two courses.

- Political Science 213 - Readings in Comparative Government and Politics
- Political Science 271 - Problems in International Politics and Organization

Less likely, but presented as alternatives in event a demand exists, are:

- Political Science 277 - Seminar: Latin American Government
- Political Science 293 - Seminar: International Politics and Government in the Pacific Area

Any of the above courses will definitely count toward graduate course requirements for students accepted by George Washington University as fully qualified applicants for a MA in International Affairs.

GWU's courses will begin during the week of 24 September. Registrants for these courses should report to Room GC-03 between 0900 and 1700 hours on 13 or 14 September. The courses for which the requisite number is enrolled by 14 September will remain open during the following week for additional registrations; those not having at least ten registrations by the close of business on 14 September will be canceled immediately.

Each of the courses carries three semester hours credit. Tuition for AU and GWU off-campus courses will be $22.00 a credit hour. Additional details on registering, payment of fees, schedules of classes, and names of instructors will appear in a Special Bulletin. In the meantime, employees may phone extension for information. Employees who may not be identified with the Agency on GWU's or AU's records may obtain assistance regarding alternative plans by consulting the Registrar, OTR, Room GC-03.

External PROGRAMS

In the External Programs Section are summaries of non-Agency programs, meetings, and courses thought to be of general interest. Announcement of such programs in this section of the Bulletin does not necessarily mean that employees will be approved for attendance at the expense of the Agency. Agency sponsorship of these or any other external programs may be approved under certain circumstances.

Registration

Applications for external training under Agency auspices are sent through Training Officers to the Chief of the External Training Branch. An employee who wants to participate in external study at his own expense is required to make arrangements in accordance with the provisions of Information on external programs may be obtained from the Admissions and Information Branch. AIB maintains a collection of catalogs, brochures, directories, and other publications of academic, commercial, and Government institutions.

CENTER FOR INTERNATIONAL STUDIES--CORNELL UNIVERSITY

A Center for International Studies was established at Cornell University in July 1961. The purpose, the Center is to coordinate and strengthen research and teaching programs in international studies carried on by Cornell's schools and colleges. Members of the Center advise the administration and faculty on academic projects overseas and serves as a link between Cornell University and other universities and governmental or private agencies that are active in international studies.

In March 1962 the University received a grant of $3,250,000 from the Ford Foundation for the support of non-Western studies at Cornell, including its Southeast Asia Program, the China Program, and the International Agricultural Development Program. Developmental funds are available to the Latin American Program, the Committee on Soviet Studies, the Committee on South Asian Studies, and to a variety of new research projects within the faculty.

The Foundation has made another grant to Cornell in the amount of $432,000 to assist in development of the newly created Labor Relations Research Institute in Bombay, India. Members of the faculty of the School of Industrial and Labor Relations will go to India to advise the director and staff members of the Institute. During the next four years, several Indian staff members and a limited number of graduate students will participate in the program at Cornell and other industrial relations centers in the United States.

In addition, the University has received a joint grant of $600,000 from the Carnegie Corporation of New York and Britain's Nuffield Foundation. This grant will be used to support study of the societies of China and Southeast Asia to be conducted over the next five years by Cornell and two schools of the University of London--the School of Oriental and African Studies and the London School of Economics and Political Science.

TWO ORGANIZATIONS TO MERGE

The American Institute of Electrical Engineers and the Institute of Radio Engineers have announced plans to merge, effective in January 1963. The new organization will be known as the Institute of Electrical and Electronic Engineers.
